Hees Feels That NFCUS Plea Can't Be Acted Upon at Moment

Who's Hees?

The Honourable George Hees, Federal Minister of Transport, is shown here as he addressed a meeting in the Union Ballroom last evening. Mr. Hees discussed the Canadian unemployment situation and financial aid to students in his talk. The event was under the sponsorship of the campus Progressive Conservative Club and was not well attended.

The Honorable George Hees, Minister of Transport, said last night that before more aid can be given to university students, the problem of increasing the number of high school graduates must be considered.

Speaking at a gathering sponsored by the McGill Progressive Conservative Club in the Union Ballroom, Mr. Hees raised this point in answer to a question as to why the government didn't spend more money on university scholarships. In his opinion, other requests made upon the government were more pressing than increasing the existing level of financial aid to higher education.

In addition, he commented, "We can't ask parents who cannot afford to send their children through high school to pay for the college education of others through the use of their tax money".

NFCUS BRIEF

This discussion arose when Stuart Smith, President of the Students' Society, asked why a brief submitted by the National Federation of Canadian University Students had received little or no attention in the past two years.

The Minister replied that the brief had been sent to all cabinet members and that great consideration was given it. However it was finally decided that other programs were more important at the time and no action could be taken.

NFCUS recently renewed their campaign for more aid at their conference in Halifax by demanding that the government co-sponsor $6 million dollars worth of scholarships.

Further on in the question period, Mr. Smith pointed out that it was not for students presently attending university that the plea for additional scholarships was being made. It was on behalf of those deserving students who could not afford to enter university. He argued that universities should not be composed of those who could afford, but for the good of all concerned, by those who would benefit the most from it.

The Minister agreed that this was quite important and that the government was 100% behind the idea but that at the present moment the allocation of the funds is not feasible.

In his main speech Mr. Hees spoke to the gathering on what he stated was "The number one topic in Canada today, the question of unemployment." He mentioned that Canada is enjoying a period of unequalled prosperity but unemployment still grows.

GREAT COMPETITION

He stated that we are "pricing ourselves out of the market." Competition is so great that only through diligent effort on the part of all Canadians will we be able to beat the problem of unemployment.

The Minister listed a few basic ideals that must be upheld in order to do so. The government, he stated, must cut production costs and taxes to the minimum. It must operate as efficiently as possible, as well as set up the most profitable trade arrangements.

LOWEST PRICE

Continuing in this vein, he stated that management must do its part by producing as efficiently as possible, with the best machines and techniques, in order to supply the best products at the lowest possible price.

As a keynote, the Minister stated that "If everyone takes it upon himself to ask what is he doing to stop unemployment, the problem would be eliminated".

Permanent Officer Will Control Financial Power of ASUS, EUS

by M. P. FEINER

The SEC has taken steps to curb the financial power of two undergraduate societies, Arts and Science and Engineering. A salaried part-time book-keeper who will act as a co-signing officer for the two organizations has been appointed for this purpose. The new procedure means that neither the ASUS nor the EUS will be allowed to make any expenditures unless cheques are signed by the new appointee. He will approve only those payments which have been authorized by the Executive in an official meeting and duly recorded in the minutes.

The decision, once made by the previous SEC, was reached when a letter from the auditors complaining about the condition of EUS' books was received. Questioning the treasurer of the EUS, Council discovered that he had found it necessary to pay out approximately $1,100 without receipts. He went on to state that he could not foresee any improvement in the condition of the books for the next year.

AUDITING

The initial reactions of the presidents of the two societies, John Duckworth, B.Eng. 5, of the EUS, and Ron Meade, B.A. 4, of the ASUS were essentially identical. They both felt that a change might do the societies good but they emphasized that only after they had seen the system in operation for a while could they be prepared to pass judgement on it.

Meade pointed out that "Many of the undergraduate societies have had difficulties in maintaining proper and accurate financial records in the past. The aid of a 'competent individual' (the actual term used in the motion) to assist the societies in their accounting procedures will be greatly appreciated, especially since the individual will hold no executive power and will not effect the autonomy of the undergraduate societies involved."

Duckworth pointed out that in the past auditors had worked on the books for a long time.

REACTION

Commenting on this, he observed that "If the length of time that MacDonald and Currie & Co., Auditors takes to audit the books is any indication of their condition then the appointment of such a 'salaried part-time book-keeper' (also from the motion) would be advantageous."

Duckworth also pointed out that a good deal of money might be saved by the new system as it would not be necessary to pay the auditors for the large amount of work they have been doing to get the books in order. "This reduction might even compensate for the salary the signing officer will receive".

Asked about the person to fill the position, Duckworth replied that it should be a student if one competent enough could be found. Meade stressed the fact that the person must be well qualified for the job.

Meade declined to offer an opinion as to whether the societies could return to the old system of treasurers keeping the books themselves. The EUS president surmised that this would be possible sometime in the future.

Novice Debating Programme Starts: Session Investigates Santa Claus

The Debating Union inaugurates its Novice Training Programme with an exhibition debate at 1 pm in the Walter M. Stewart Room of the Union.

The topic to be discussed is, "Resolved that Santa Claus should seek a more modern method of entrance". Joyce Lecker, Sammy Gewurz, Moses Znaimer and Seymour Glouberman, members of the intercollegiate debating team and former graduates of the Novice Debating Programme will be the participants, Irwin Cotler, President of the Debating Union will chair the meeting and deliver a few words explaining the Novice Programme.

Cotler told the "Daily" that all McGill students are automatically members of the Debating Union and expressed the wish that "McGill students will utilize their membership and take advantage of this opportunity to lay the essential foundations and gain valuable experience in thinking and speaking that only this kind of society can give. That is why the Novice Training Programme is the most important aspect of Debating Union Activity — an importance which is reflected in the fact that debating is a compulsory course at many American universities".

"Today's debate is only the beginning of a comprehensive series of training lectures, practice debates and debating trials culminating in the selection of a Novice Intercollegiate Debating Team which will represent McGill at the University of Vermont Invitational Tournament in November. Moreover a team of the best Novices will be sent to the Hofstra Invitational Tournament in New York during the second term. Finally, novices will also have an opportunity to debate in inter-fraternity, inter-faculty, inter-residence debating and can represent McGill in the McGill Winter Carnival Debate Tournament, the largest in North America. A public speaking competition will also be held for beginners with the Bovey Shield going to the finest speaker."

Billy Fraiberg, Chairman of the Novice Debating Programme said that the word "novice" is used to include all who have not had any previous experience in college debating and that although the word is used interchangeably with freshman, it may apply to upperclassmen too.

"We believe this organization has something of value to offer everyone," concluded Cotler, "and we hope that students will interest themselves sufficiently and derive this value."

Television Idylls

This week, as an estimated ninety million American and Canadian Television viewers disrupted their weekly schedule of westerns and variety shows, two serious young men conducted a political discussion in the living rooms of the continent.

In eight minutes, the more dashing of the two outlined a domestic program which would "make America move". He outlined proposals dealing with education, health insurance and development of natural resources, all designed to achieve this goal.

In eight more minutes, the slightly balding man agreed in principle with these proposals, but emphasized that the means to achieve these ends are not massive efforts of the Federal Government. Subtle governmental guidance, tempering the essential American value of self-reliance, was humbly suggested as a better means to attain the desired end.

This clash on means, rather than on ends, is sadly symbolic of the intellectual atmosphere precipitated in many modern societies like the one extant below the border by the advent of the technological age.

We have come to debate whether or not the Bomarc, for example, is an effective means of waging war in the nuclear age. We hardly concern ourselves today with the far more basic problems of peace and war, the causes which wars are designed to propagate, and the question as to whether or not war is a satisfactory price to pay for the preservation of social values.

Perhaps it is too much to expect of a television program, but we do hope the next three Kennedy-Nixon parlour debates will concentrate a little more than they have so far on what we should try to accomplish rather than on how we should try to do it.

SCOPE's Resurrection

The first event in the SCOPE Committee's 1960-61 calendar indicates that the cultural aspect of McGill's extra-curricular program will be boosted from the depths to which it seemed to sink last year.

This first event is a concert by the Royal Welsh Male Choir, scheduled for next Tuesday in Redpath Hall. It represents a bit of a coup for SCOPE since the Choir is coming primarily for a tour of the United States, and on a very tight itinerary.

Moreover, the concert will not be beyond the reach of anyone's pocketbook, admission for McGill students being only a single dollar, and for outsiders only twice that amount.

We hope the students of this university will support the venture, because its success will lend impetus to SCOPE's program for the rest of the year.

At the same time, we hope the SCOPE people will not rest on their laurels as a result of one successful evening. We hope that they will bring to campus throughout the forthcoming session a variety of worthwhile cultural events, which have been so sparse in recent years.

Letters to the Editor

Sir:

That reprint of a story in The Nation (which you ran Sept. 27) probably does more to discredit American desire for world peace than anything old Krusch can say or do. It speaks loudly for what has become of earlier American ideals. To hear a U.S. Army Colonel describe it ("...it's great stuff. It's more humane than anything else we've got"), the use of nerve gases and bacteria in modern warfare gives the U.S. a lead in the race for "more humane" methods of mass murder.

This of course was pioneered by none other than the infamous Adolph Eichmann and Rudolph Hoess when they used prussic acid crystals for mass exterminations in the Auschwitz gas chambers. Unfortunately, the victims took about one half hour to die, and some didn't but they were thrown into the crematoria anyway.

Now we have American chemists, products of some of our highest institutes of learning, who blandly show us new and more efficient methods of extermination. Good grief! What is Science coming to? What is becoming of the American spirit of "Liberty, Equality and Fraternity" which France chose to dedicate to America with a gigantic monument (or is it really a tomb?) at the mouth of the Hudson?

There isn't anything wrong with scientific discipline, as such, I suppose, just with the people who profess to be scientists. Where the devil they can get such cynicism and callousness is a bit beyond me.

I shudder to think of what will become of the western world with these professional killers riding in the saddle, in control of the reins of government. We all know what became of German culture when the people gave up their right to think for themselves and payed homage to the gods of hate, lust and power.

Ron Fleischman.

NFCUS Effects Fees Increase; Dime Hike Passed Unanimously

The Presidents of all the 34 member universities of NFCUS agreed to a fee increase of 10 cents a student to be paid on a voluntary basis at Tuesday afternoon's plenary session of the 24th NFCUS Congress held last week at Dalhousie University.

What seemed to be the most controversial issue of the Congress was passed unanimously by all 34 with no one speaking against the motion.

David Edgar, president of the Students' Council at the University of British Columbia presented the resolution which stated the voluntary raise would bring fees to 60 cents for the first 1,500 students, 55 for the next 1,500, 50 for the next 1,000 and 45 cents a student for universities with population in excess of 4,000.

DIME RAISE

Edgar pointed out, "In essence this would be a dime raise at every level". If all universities agree to the raise, the increase will bring in $7,800 for the Federation.

He pointed out that there was a gap between the potential and financial position of NFCUS. "We must strengthen our financial position and funds cannot be diverted therefore we have come to the conclusion that a fee increase is desirable, but that it should be a voluntary one."

Member universities will not be forced into paying the additional voluntary sum, he said. From 1951-53 the fee was 20 cents, 1953-54, it was 20-50 cents, 1955, 50 cents, 1956-60 it averaged 41 cents a student.

STAFF ADDITIONS

The money raised by the fee increase would be allocated for a comptroller and a part-time secretary. The present staff of the Secretariat consists of an executive secretary, who has also been acting as treasurer, the president, who must travel, and a secretary.

"At present we are preventing our executive secretary Andre l'Heureux from doing the task for which he is best suited. This expert on student affairs is fettered with book work", he said.

Edgar stressed that the Federation is financially able to carry on. — "It is not in trouble", he said, "but our program is now a broad one which can be explained to students".

MCGILL'S ROLE

McGill president Stuart Smith was the only speaker on the motion and supported it stating, "our Federation has come a long way, and the raise is necessary to continue its progress. It is almost impossible for our dedicated Secretariat to continue to work long hours. I have no doubt that our students' Council will be happy to make this voluntary contribution".

Following the passing of the resolution Roy Heenan also of McGill and international affairs Vice-President told the delegates that their action justifies the confidence which the students of Canada have in their Federation."

"We have come a long way from the days when universities would come in and out of the Federation, and when they asked do photography contests justify our 50 cents," he declared. He referred to the program for the coming year in which the Federation offers some 15 national activities as well as the photography contest.

Outgoing president Jacques Gerin congratulated the presidents for "your fine gesture." He told them that it was a "fine reward for your Executive and Secretariat. You have decided to give them the means of doing their work — a vote of confidence. We know that we have the support of all the students of Canada."

Male Choir From Wales Will Sing At Redpath Thurs

The Royal Welsh Male Choir will sing before its first North American audience next Thursday in Redpath Hall, at 8:30 pm. This concert sponsored by SCOPE will be the first event in the committee's 1960-61 series.

The Choir has had a distinguished history, and has played before several distinguished audiences. In England, it has given command performances before Queen Victoria, Queen Mary, and, most recently, Queen Elizabeth at the Commonwealth Prime Minister's Conference in 1947. On its last visit to America, in 1966, it performed before President Theodore Roosevelt.

Highlights of the Thursday evening concert are songs by Wagner, Mendelssohn, and Offenbach. "The Battle of Jericho" will appeal to the less classically-minded.

Tickets go on sale today at the Union Box Office—student tickets selling for one dollar; faculty tickets, for two. The general public will be able to buy tickets for two dollars on Friday.

SCOPE's next concert this year will feature a Hungarian violinist. During 1961, SCOPE is hoping to present Ted Elfstrom and his group.

AND AGAIN, AND AGAIN, AND...

No eager Daily beaver has as yet outlined the chances of the 1960 version of the McGill Redmen in the optimistic way that this fourth-estimator will presently attempt to do. Let's start by inspecting the weaknesses of last year's squad and pointing out where the problems have been rectified. There is no disputing the defensive strength of the 1959 Redmen. This squad has remained fairly well intact. The addition of Rae Brown at tackle was welcome but a broken leg in practice took care of that. Offensively, the Red and White were weak, but last Saturday's showing indicated what to expect. The 31 point showing meant more points than all of last season plus (if you care) the last game of the season before.

Tom Skyeck was slow in starting but once he got the idea of Canadian Intercollegiate play, he looked awfully good to Red and White faithfuls. He has the welcome ability to hit his receivers properly, and, happily enough, he has those receivers in John Moore, John Girvin (all-star at Western), Willie Lambert, Bob Windsor (all-star at Mount A.), and friends.

If the ground is your interest, try fullback Harry Haukkala, most valuable for two years in his league at Mount A., or Carl Hansen.

The intercollegiate lineup seems to be as follows:

BIG BLUE BLARNEY

Western, last year's Canadian champ is weaker with the loss of runners Meco Poliziani and Lionel Conacher (both with the Alouettes) and top center Bill Mitchell. The usual big talk is coming from Toronto where there lives a coach who thinks that if the Blues will ever win the championship again, they will do such this year. So they came up against the weaker Mustangs last Saturday, and when the dust cleared the scoreboard showed 22-22.

Queen's Golden Gaels are an improved club, and so the game against McGill showed. They put together 38 points, 12 on long pass plays in the first half, 6 on a 90 yard kickoff runback and 6 on a blocked kick. The coach tightened up the pass defence at the half and it held well in the second half. Note that Redmen TD's came as results of powerful offensive series. The Gaels always have been and always will be dangerous at home in front of the greatest confidence-building fans around. Add this to their two exhibition games against our none, plus the fact that this week is the one in which the locals will give all on the defence at practice and you come up with a potentially different situation on Saturday.

So come to Saturday's big show featuring two platoon Red and White football, with no important weaknesses and you may be in for a surprise: a real live winning team.

Nearsighted Mr. Magoo Corners Gridiron Too

College football pauses this fall to observe the 50th anniversary of one of its little-known, but widely-accepted, steps of progress: the putting of numbers on football jerseys.

Center of commemorative ceremonies will be Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey, where a legendary quarterback, Quincy Magoo, now famous as "Mister Magoo", first had difficulty in distinguishing the players, with or without a program.

It was one of those then unsung events, somewhat like the exploit of William Webb Ellis, who first took the ball in his arms for dear old Rugby (England), and ran with it in 1823, originating the distinctive feature of the Rugby game.

Today there is a tablet at Rugby chronicling Ellis' fine disregard for the rules of football as played at the time. But as yet, no far-sighted historian has written the story of how Quincy Magoo, and at Rutgers, too, wisely added his contribution to the game.

The exact date and name of the playing field, as well as Rutgers' opponent, are a slight blur to Mister Magoo, but he does recall having some difficulty in telling the players, as well as the teams, apart.

Quincy Magoo, according to "Old Grad Magoo", a motion picture cartoon released in 1959, graduated from Rutgers "some time before the World War I" and placed his gridiron activity at 1910, when he stopped a game to demand of the referee:

"Why don't they put NUMBERS on them?" meaning the players.

The statement and accusation were echoed by the student body. When, and it is doubtful if ever, Rutgers was defeated, the ra-coon-coated partisans of 1910 had a perfect alibi:

"We shoulda put numbers on them."

Some football historians may claim teams of the '90's did have numbers on them, but Quincy Magoo hotly disputes the point: "With all those bright New Jerseys on the field, who could see a number?"

One point no football expert will dispute is that, after Magoo left Rutgers, all players had great big block numbers and the business of selling programs listing players' names and numbers thrived.

In later years, Mister Magoo re-echoed his request, slightly altered by frequent repetition, to: "Why don't they put up a sign."

Magoo never admits he can't see and in the movie business with its terrific eyestrain (kleig light, reflectors and all) he won two Academy Awards with his challenge and call for easily-read signs.

So this fall as Old Grad Magoo starts his new career on television for Hollywood's UPA Pictures alumni associations will be dunning thousands of unpaid-up old grads for just a small contribution to commemorate the proper labeling of players and the program boys will pause in reverence as they shout:

"Programs! Here! You or Magoo can't tell the players without a program!"
